FIRST MAN ON THE MOON

REVEAL MOON STAMP—Postmaster General Winton M. Blount revealed Wednesday in Washington that Apollo 11 will mark America's first mail run to the moon. An engraved master stamp die and a special "moon letter" will accompany the astronauts on the journey through space and their historic lunar landing. Upon its return to earth, the die will be used to produce a special jumbo-size, 10-cent airmail postage stamp, commemorating man's first landing on the moon. The "Moon Landing" commemorative stamp, which will be 50% larger than a usual stamp, will be issued with first day ceremonies in Washington, D.C. late in August. The "moon letter" will bear a die proof of the commemorative stamp and will be hand cancelled by astronaut Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin with a special postmark reading "Moon Landing U.S.A., July 20, 1969."

Soviets Prodded U.S. Seeks Arms Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Using conciliatory words from Moscow as background, the United States gently prodded the Soviet Union Friday to get on with arms-limitation talks.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers said a Thursday speech by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko "seems to be positive in tone regarding relations with the United States."

Then he politely but pointedly noted that Washington still is awaiting a reply from Moscow on U.S. proposals for an early start on bilateral discussion of nuclear arms limitation.

Rogers issued his statement shortly after Democratic and Republican leaders in the Senate had joined in the view that it is time for the Soviet Union to translate talk into action on arms limitation.

The key paragraph in Rogers' comment on Gromyko's Moscow speech said: "He referred specifically to the willingness of the Soviet Union to enter into talks on strategic arms limitation. As you know, we believe that this would be a significant step forward in our relations with the Soviet Union and we are awaiting their response to our proposals for a time and place for such meetings."

A State Department spokesman told reporters there has been no Soviet response to the U.S. proposals, made several weeks ago, that talks start between July 31 and Aug. 15. Vienna and Geneva were suggested as possible sites.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana told newsmen Gromyko's assertion that Moscow is "all for negotiation" is encouraging. But Mansfield said it is time for a clear answer on the U.S. initiative.

The Senate Republican leader, Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, said he's not going to be satisfied until real negotiations replace words voiced in general terms.

He added: "It's the same old story. Gromyko talks softly about negotiations. But he doesn't say where and he doesn't say when. I'm not persuaded that they really want to negotiate until they fix a time and a place."

Rogers said: "We shall continue to examine other aspects of the speech to see, in consultation with our allies, whether any of them may offer themselves as vehicles for early resolution of outstanding problems between us."

Other matters touched on by Gromyko include a possible summit meeting and East-West talks on Berlin. These are being carefully studied here.

Expect Monstrous Crowds At Launch

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Officials estimate a million people want to watch the Apollo 11 astronauts leave for the moon, and there is fear that this part of Florida will suffer a monstrous traffic jam by Wednesday on land and sea and in the air.

There are plenty of places for watching. It's the getting there that's sticky. And the getting away will be stickier.

Never before will so many people have traveled to watch a show that lasts three minutes at best.

Over a network of roads that would be taxed by a football game crowd, officials expect 350,000 cars, the Poor People's Campaign mule train, a man running from Houston, Tex., and another coming by bicycle.

On the Indian and Banana rivers that separate the launch site from the mainland they foresee 3,000 boats.

And airports as far away as Miami expect to be busier than Chicago's O'Hare, the world's busiest, with 1,500 planes in and out.

Not all the watchers will be in the marsh land and orange groves that characterize the eastern coast line. The space agency expects to accommodate 5,000 VIPs, 1,500 other guests and 3,000 to 5,000 newsmen near the launch site. They'll see the Saturn 5 liftoff from 3½ miles away.

Each member of Congress got an invitation for a free plane trip for the big day—along with one relative—and Rep. James G. Fulton, R-Pa., said 254 of the 433 members of the House had accepted. The space agency estimated 30 of the 100 senators will come.

Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, objected strenuously to a proposal that the House adjourn Wednesday.

It will cost a lot of money to fly the congressmen, Gross said. "Every member of this House has a television set," he said.

Bill Emerton, a 49-year-old Australian marathon runner jogging the 1,040 miles from Houston to the Cape "to expose as much publicity as possible to the mission," expected to arrive Tuesday. And bicyclist Enio Ponti of Houston is making the same trip to make the Cape fire chief an honorary chief of Houston.

Hosca Williams of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference said Poor People from at least five Southern states will be with the mule train. The Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, head of the SCLC, will hold rallies.

"These people have a right to demonstrate and march as long as they don't break the law and tie up traffic," said Sheriff Leigh Wilson.

"We've covered all contingencies, I think," said Phil Streit, safety director of Brevard County. "We've planned as much as we can plan. Now we have to wait and see if it works."

Brevard County, which includes Cape Kennedy, Cocoa Beach, Cocoa, Merritt Island and Titusville, normally has a population of 221,000. But it has a resort atmosphere, is thick with restaurants, bars, motels and topless joints. To appease other needs, the county has stationed portable comfort facilities strategically.

All parks and beaches have been turned into public campgrounds.

SAD TO LEAVE—Mrs. Frank Borman (R) cries from sadness of leaving friends she made during her tour of Soviet Union with her astronaut husband. "I don't think this family has enjoyed ten days in our lives so much as this last ten days," said Mrs. Borman. She is comforted by Viktor Gorskikh, deputy chairman of Soviet Friendship Society, and by an unidentified translator. (UPI Telephoto)

Viet Cong Prepares Summer Offensives

SAIGON (AP) — Enemy forces are steadily building up north of Saigon and the Communist command may unleash a new phase of its summer offensive within a few days, U.S. officers said Friday.

Citing captured enemy documents and prisoner questioning, the officers said the two danger points are the provincial capitals of Tay Ninh, 60 miles northwest of Saigon, and An Loc, 50 miles north of the capital.

Part of Tay Ninh was invaded and An Loc was attacked in the enemy offensive that ended the middle of June. U.S. officers say the enemy was badly hurt in the fighting then and has had nearly a month to rebuild units.

Tay Ninh and An Loc are under the menace of three North Vietnamese divisions—the 1st, 7th and 9th. To try and keep them off balance, U.S. forces are maintaining pressure on all three, but so far they have run into no major units.

Four small clashes in the area were reported in 24 hours and U.S. forces reported killing 43 of the enemy without suffering any casualties.

In addition, U.S. B52 Stratofortresses dropped hundreds of tons of bombs on suspected enemy staging areas overnight around Tay Ninh and An Loc.

During the lull, one of the longest of the war, the enemy has contented itself with sporadic rocket and mortar attacks. There were 38 such attacks early Friday on allied bases and South Vietnamese cities, the heaviest in nearly a week. Damage and casualties were described as light.

There has been speculation that the lull might be a Communist command decision to de-escalate the fighting. But U.S. officers reiterated that they saw no political significance to enemy inactivity.

U.S. spokesmen said if the new enemy attacks do not come soon, they probably would be held off until August to permit more time for reinforcement and supply.

In the far north, 200 U.S. Marines of Charlie Co., 1st Battalion, 9th Regiment, arrived in the rear staging area of Quang Tri on the first leg of their departure from Vietnam.

In the Mekong Delta, terrorists set off a bomb in the provincial capital of Can Tho, 75 miles southwest of Saigon. Four civilians were reported killed and 10 wounded.

Several small clashes were reported in the past 24 hours north of Saigon. U.S. forces reported killing 43 enemy in four fights without suffering any casualties.

Draft Conspiracy Dr. Spock Acquitted

BOSTON (AP) — The draft conspiracy convictions of Dr. Benjamin Spock and three others were thrown out Friday by the 1st U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which also ordered Spock and one other acquitted.

The appeals court, however, ordered the new U.S. District Court trials on conspiracy charges against the Yale University chaplain, the Rev. William Sloane Coffin Jr., and author and teacher Mitchell Goodman of Temple, Maine.

Ordered acquitted was Michael Ferber of Boston, a Harvard graduate student.

The court held there was insufficient evidence that Spock and Ferber intended to use illegal means or adhere to illegal aspects of an antiwar, antidraft agreement.

It ruled that Coffin and Goodman were not entitled to acquittals but were entitled to new trials because their rights had been prejudiced when U.S. District Court Judge Francis J.W. Ford told the jury to answer 10 specific questions in addition to returning verdicts.

The four men were convicted June 14, 1968, of conspiring to counsel young men to violate Selective Service rules. Five had been indicted on the charge Jan. 5, 1968, but on defendant, Marcus Raskin of Washington, was acquitted by the trial jury.

Spock, reached at the home of friends on an island off Cape Cod, said of the decision: "It's a big moment. In some ways it makes me feel very good."

He said he was sorry Coffin and Goodman had to face retrial.

"If it was all right for me to say that the war in Vietnam is wrong, then I think we ought to work all the harder to remove ourselves from Vietnam ...," Spock said.

The Circuit Court's ruling was written by Chief Judge Bailey (Turn To Page Ten) (See "Spock")

Nixon Backs Thieu In Elections Offer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon promptly backed South Vietnam's new political settlement offer Friday and called on the enemy for serious negotiations on ending the war.

President Nguyen Van Thieu's proposal for internationally supervised elections including the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front would give all South Vietnamese a genuine chance to determine their own future, Nixon declared, adding:

"If the other side is prepared for serious negotiations, and willing to abide by the free choice of the South Vietnamese people, this should open the way at last for a rapid settlement of the conflict."

Nixon's statement was issued by the White House shortly after Thieu outlined his offer publicly in Saigon.

The speed with which the U.S. endorsement was issued in Washington gave support to administration claims that the two governments had been in close consultation on the political proposal. Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said also that the White House had an advance text of Thieu's speech.

Nixon portrayed the Thieu offer as the culmination of a long series of steps by which the allies have demonstrated their sincere desire to negotiate a speedy peace. He listed as previous steps:

—U.S. willingness to continue the Paris peace talks despite its charge of North Vietnamese violation of the conditions under which the United States halted the bombing of the North last year, and despite the enemy's "refusal to deal with the Saigon government."

—Thieu's March 25 offer of private talks with the Viet Cong, which was refused.

—Nixon's eight-point peace plan issued May 14, including an offer to pull out U.S. and allied forces within 12 months.

—The withdrawal of 25,000 GIs announced by Nixon and Thieu at their June 8 Midway Island summit meeting.

Thieu now "has challenged the other side to test its claims to popular support at the polls," Nixon said. "Hanoi has nothing to gain by waiting ..."

"I call upon the leaders of the other side to respond in a spirit of peace, and let the political issues be resolved by the political process."

Despite the warm official endorsement of what Nixon described as Thieu's "comprehensive, statesman-like and eminently fair proposal," few here expect the enemy will welcome the plan.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., had guarded praise for Thieu statement, but said he doubts it will have much impact on the Communists.

"It seems to be the most forthright speech he has made so far," said Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

However, Fulbright said he doubts that the Communists will be convinced there can be fair elections in South Vietnam so long as the Thieu regime remains in control of the government.

'No Safeguard Compromise'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate supporters of the Safeguard antiballistic missile proposal said Friday they will not compromise the hotly contested issue.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird was reported equally adamant.

But Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., sponsor of a compromise amendment, said in an interview "They don't have the votes."

"They'll be hard-nosed this afternoon," McIntyre said, "but by next week they'll begin to crack."

"The administration is going to have to make up its mind whether it is going to go for broke or go for a modification," he added.

Despite the rising talk of a compromise, Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois disputed the assertion of Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., Thursday that, even if the administration could squeeze out a 51-49 victory, that would be the same as a defeat.

"If you win by one point, it's as good as 20 touchdowns," Dirksen told reporters.

At the Pentagon, officials said Laird re-emphasized his "unqualified support for the Safeguard proposal as submitted by the President to Congress."

Asked whether Laird opposes a compromise, Pentagon spokesman Jerry Friedheim said "That is correct."

An aide to Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Armed Services Committee and floor manager of the bill, said Stennis "is not thinking, not talking, not considering compromise."

Senate sources said that, with voting still probably at least two weeks away, no alternative acceptable to all Safeguard opponents has been found.

For example, McIntyre, whose proposal would delete the ABM's radars and computers at the initial Safeguard sites in North Dakota and Montana but would bar deployment of its missiles, said he is unwilling to go as far as Sens. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Philip A. Hart, D-Mich. They have introduced a rival amendment limiting the program to research and barring any deployment or site acquisition.

"I don't know how the administration could go that far," McIntyre said. But he expressed belief the administration could easily accept his proposal since he said it would keep the program on its time schedule toward full deployment in 1974.

As for a suggestion by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana that the radars and computers be deployed at two Pacific test sites, Kwajalein and Eniwetok, McIntyre said "Everything we would do there would have to be done later" at the North Dakota and Montana sites and this would put the program behind schedule.

Chicago's Teachers Balk At Transfers

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago's teachers, faced with a federal order that the city's faculties must be integrated racially, say their civil rights must be protected as well as those of the pupils.

"Many teachers, both black and white, will not accept forcible transfer," John E. Desmond, president of the Chicago Teachers Union, said Thursday. "Transfer is one of the concerns that teachers hold dear."

He said the federal guidelines would be fought "in the courts, somehow, to determine the individual rights of teachers."

"Are the federal government and school board going to force teachers to move from schools where they have been assigned on the basis of seniority and transfer application?" Desmond asked.

The teachers union represents about 19,000 of the city's 22,000 teachers. Of the total number of educators, 65.7 per cent are white, 33.9 per cent are Negro and 4 per cent other races. The law forbids employers of teachers to include their race in personnel files.

The Department of Justice charged Wednesday that 215 of Chicago's 578 public schools have all-white or all-Negro faculties and ordered the board to present a plan of integration within two weeks or face federal suit.

At the time, members of the school board blamed the union for the situation and said the board has pursued no deliberate policy of racial segregation.

The union contract with the board provides that certified teachers with one year of experience may apply for vacancies anywhere in the city.

This system has permitted experienced teachers to transfer to schools outside the inner city, the Justice Department charged.

Desmond said the school board has the power to appoint any teachers it chooses to 10 per cent of the positions at every school.

He said the board could use this authority to distribute teachers more equally throughout the city on the basis of race and experience.

Desmond maintained that housing patterns play an important role when tenured teachers pick their school assignments.

"It's where you live, how far you have to travel, the neighborhood you have to travel through," he said.

Desmond suggested that housing patterns are where you must begin.

He said the school board could make inner-city schools more attractive to teachers by reducing class size, removing socially maladjusted pupils from regular classrooms and taking steps to insure teacher safety.

At a news conference Thursday, Mayor Richard J. Daley said the school board needs the cooperation of the union to solve the problem of teacher integration and acknowledged that the seniority system has existed for years.

"This is a fair way of assigning employees, but actually there must be some new way found," he said.

"It has been suggested that maybe additional compensation should be paid, and this would attract better teachers," he said.

"Regardless of what method is used, all of us recognize that we have to get better teachers into the inner school systems—whether they are black or white," the mayor said.

LIFELIKE PORTRAIT — This portrait of the late President Kennedy by James Wyeth will be exhibited for the first time in this country beginning Friday at the Farnsworth Museum in Rockland, Maine. The artist, 23-year-old son of Andrew Wyeth, never saw John F. Kennedy in person; the painting was executed when the artist was 19 from sketches he made of the late Sen. Robert Kennedy and Sen. Edward Kennedy and photographs of the former President. (UPI Telephoto)

If There's A Joke, It's On Us

Summer has a reputation for being something of a silly season for news, even on serious subjects. In this case, pollution.

In a recent sampling of how's-that-again wire items:

A Georgia Tech researcher has come up with an unexpected side effect in developing a device to reduce the smoke output of diesel engines. It makes the exhaust smell like fresh popcorn.

A civic joke came true in Cleveland, where residents have long said, if not boasted, that they have the only river that is a fire hazard. The Cuyahoga, which meanders through the city's industrial heart, literally caught fire. A mass of oily waste dumped by upstream plants ignited, blazing away long enough to char rails and buckle ties of a railway bridge.

And in what could be the severest blow to Momism since Philip Wylie's generation of critics, word comes from Boston that mother's milk may no longer be best, or even safe, for baby. At a Massachusetts legislative hearing on pesticides, testimony cited recent Swedish studies indicating a DDT level in a test group of mothers twice that allowable in commercial milk.

There may be something ironic in the possibility that man, who with much reason can be viewed as a pest by the animal world, might himself be undone by the very pesticides with which he has caused such havoc among his fellow creatures on this planet.

Irony, maybe, but not humor. There is nothing funny about the continuing pollution of the environment.

Nature does not discriminate. It sees to it that indiscriminately spread pesticides accumulate in human bodies as well as in lesser species, to what ultimate effect no one is yet sure. Cleveland can repair its bridge, but Lake Erie, into which the Cuyahoga continues to pour its daily tons of filth, may already be beyond saving. And the smell of popcorn, agreeable as it may be, only masks continuing fouling of the atmosphere.

Pollution may have its bizarre side, but not really a lighter one. Even in the silly season, it is no joke.

Borman Backs Cooperation

Occasional suggestions that the United States and the Soviet Union ought to cooperate in space rather than continue their present rivalry are not universally applauded. Many opponents feel that the United States should proceed with solo space operations to strengthen its world prestige and continually reassert its supremacy in this pioneering field of human endeavor.

Proponents of the idea of U.S.-Soviet cooperation in space maintain that if we took the initiative in this regard our national prestige would not be weakened, but strengthened. The argument is made that our standing in the eyes of the world would be heightened by such evidence of intent to join in making space exploration an enterprise for all mankind rather than an outlet of nationalism.

There is room for honest disagreement. On balance, however, we find the arguments in favor of space cooperation more persuasive than those against it. Exploration of the universe beyond our home planet is, or certainly should be, an undertaking of which all the human race could feel itself a part. Cooperation between the two major space powers would be a start toward that. The economics of space programs also favor cooperative effort so that the present duplication of massive costs could in large measure be dispensed with.

It is noteworthy that the idea of U.S.-Soviet cooperation has been given a boost in the Soviet Union by Frank Borman. The astronaut disclosed U.S. plans for launching an orbital space station in the mid-70s, and predicted "a time . . . when Soviet and American engineers and cosmonauts will be flying together" in that program. Borman's credentials and expertise are unassailable. He has given impetus to a concept of space exploration and travel in which not merely individual nations but the whole race of man would be to some extent involved.

A GLANCE Into The Past

There are 18 girls entered in the Morgan County Junior Fair Queen contest, announces Mrs. Robert Houston, chairman of the committee in charge.

Rev. Homer R. Brown died Saturday at his home in Pittsfield. He was born in Atlas 75 years ago and lived in Pike county all his life.

50 YEARS AGO

The carnival on the Cannon lot was washed out last night. Many people had shown up for the four round boxing exhibition between Ai Baldwin and the Frisco Kid, but it had to be called off.

The annual Arenzville chautauque will be held July 28th through August 1st.

The auditor says the city is in even worse shape than anybody dreamed of: a $16,481.49 operating deficit in the 12 months ending May 1, a bonded indebtedness of $113,000 and a floating indebtedness of $131,933.49, only $2,107.16 in the treasury and 75 per cent of next year's taxes already anticipated. It doesn't take a financial genius to figure out that we are in bad shape.

Disputes ABM Need As Bolster For Disarm Talks

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican Sen. Charles Percy says it is "pure hogwash" to argue that the Safeguard missile defense system is needed to strengthen President Nixon's hand for U.S.-Soviet disarmament talks.

And Democratic Sen. Albert Gore says such an argument put forth on behalf of the antiballistic missile program ABM—in opening debate by fellow Democrats John C. Stennis of Mississippi and Henry M. Jackson of Washington represents "a shift of strategy" by the pro-Safeguard forces.

Gore teamed with Percy to needle Stennis and Jackson as the ABM debate in the Senate heated up Wednesday.

Gore noted President Nixon and Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird had based their argument for ABM on the need to protect the nation's missile deterrent force. The Tennessee Democrat suggested ABM supporters were departing from that course when they contended Safeguard should be approved to bolster the President for impending disarmament talks with the Soviet Union.

"Has the senator noted a shift of strategy and logic today?" Gore asked Percy.

"Yes," responded the Illinois Republican "I've noticed that.

And the argument is pure hogwash."

Up jumped Jackson and Stennis, each demanding recognition to rebut the contention.

"The senator is mistaken. There has been no change in my position," said Stennis, chairman of the Armed Services Committee who opened the debate Tuesday by saying the need to stand behind Nixon was essential.

"I have not changed my position," Jackson said. "I believe there is a clear need to protect the deterrent. I also believe it is important the President not have the rug pulled from under him at negotiations."

While the ABM debate picked up steam, Laird's testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee at a June 23 closed door hearing was made public—providing an additional illustration of the wide split in Washington over what course should be taken in defense and disarmament.

Laird in his testimony re-emphasized the arguments for Safeguard and rejected a suggestion that the United States unilaterally suspend development of multiheaded missiles.

Under vigorous questioning by Committee Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., Laird narrowed his earlier contention that the Russians were aiming for a devastating first-strike nuclear capability.

He said he was talking about a Soviet capability to knock out retaliatory U.S. Minuteman missiles in their permanent silos. He said he had never contended this would be an overall knockout blow.

Fulbright insisted there was disagreement in the U.S. intelligence community over Russian capabilities and intentions. Laird replied there was none so far as capabilities were concerned.

During the Senate ABM debate Wednesday, Fulbright kept up his attack on the administration military policy.

"The real point of this whole debate," he said, "is the effort by some members of the Senate to reassert some control over the military department of the United States."

"The point we have chosen to make that debate is the ABM," Fulbright added.

The Arkansas Democrat also said "I think it is a great phenomenon, two great countries, the United States and Russia, are unable to stop the expenditure of funds that in this country totals $80 billion—this country, richest in the world, threatened with a form of bankruptcy."

Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., introduced their amendment to the $20 billion military procurement bill, which includes $759.1 million for ABM. The amendment prohibits

Division Is Theme Of Vietnam History

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Many Americans, leaders included, seem always to be astonished and dismayed—even disgusted—that South Vietnam's Saigon government does not rise to the levels of democratic tolerance and competence expected of it.

Even those observers most generous-minded toward Saigon say that if the South Vietnamese leaders had lived up to just a few expectations—like that for thoroughgoing land reform and for healthy acceptance of opposition parties—they would today be in a far stronger position than they are.

An American official, sadly surveying the actualities, recently remarked ruefully on the "cussedness of all Vietnamese, North and South."

But probably our expectations have been too high from the start. Not in excuse but in explanation, these things need to be said about the difficulties of South Vietnam's leaders, past and present.

This tiny country of 65,000 square miles, just a shade smaller than our own Washington state, is fundamentally one of the most badly divided patches of earth anywhere on this globe.

The major divisive elements are regional, ethnic, religious, social and political.

South Vietnam has northerners, "centerites" and southerners, different from one another in make-up and outlook, tending usually to be distrustful of one another.

The religious divisions are an old story, with the Buddhists heavily dominant, the strong Catholic infusion from North Vietnam a key factor, the Cao Dai and Hoa Hao sects a special problem with their own political complexion and, for a time, their separatist armies.

Ethnic minorities come to about 16 per cent of the total South Vietnamese population. About 1.3 million are overseas Chinese, most of the remainder Cambodians and the celebrated Montagnards of the Central Highlands.

Neither in this fractured society nor in North Vietnam nor in the two sectors together has "nationhood" long been a fact of life. In much of the past 300 years, the entirety of Vietnam has been divided into halves and even thirds.

What central authority the Vietnamese themselves have established in parts of Vietnam has been traditionally autocratic, with no tolerance of opposition. That embedded habit lingers today, and explains why South Vietnamese leaders act so swiftly to stifle rivalry, even as they pay formal homage to new concepts of democracy.

As author Douglas Pike notes in his book, "War, Peace and the Viet Cong":

"Political competition still is seen as a challenge to the central government, requiring stern countermeasures. Opposition still is regarded as revolutionary, since in the past it usually was..."

For all this autocratic tradition, it is an established fact that the power of the Saigon government in the years since the 1954 Geneva pact has never run too strongly in many of the country's 2,500 villages—and some places it really never reached at all.

By the time the Viet Cong were mounting substantial armed attacks in 1960, there were said to be six major areas of the countryside—all former Viet Minh bases in the earlier French war—over which the then President Diem had no control at all. These were among the first to become "liberated areas" in the new revolt.

Saigon's performance from 1954 on was in effect a crash program to make a nation before the quickly consolidated, better organized Communist government of Ho Chi Minh in North Vietnam could engulf it.

It broke the power of the sect armies, built a fairly workable bureaucracy on the ashes of the French debacle, began land reforms.

But its stubborn clinging to autocratic leadership, its repressive overreaction to the lingering threat of 5,000 or more Hanoi agents and its incapacity to win over anti-Red but still diverse elements opened the way to the internal chaos that plagues it yet.

Ann Landers: Claims Persons Bent on Suicide Can Be Helped

Dear Ann Landers: I read with special interest your column on suicide. You said individuals who have suicidal patterns develop them early in life and if a person is bent on destroying himself, he will do so and nobody can stop him.

I wish I could say you are wrong, but I can't. I do believe, however, that you could have added something to your answer. Please tell your readers that an alert and perceptive friend, relative or doctor might be able to help a self-destructive individual decide that he WANTS to live.

I speak from experience, as one who attempted suicide twice. After the first attempt, a nurse (who should have been doing something else for a living) told me I was merely trying to get attention. This so infuriated me that I was determined to kill myself and prove her wrong. I realize now how sick I was and how twisted was my reasoning.

No person will take his life if he feels he is really needed. This was my problem and it still is, to a large extent.

There are times when I feel hopelessly inadequate and I scream at my husband that I am a burden, that I'm not fit to live. He screams back, "I love you! I need you!" until I am quiet. Then he holds me in his arms and gives me the reassurance I need. If someone I love said he wanted to kill himself, I would take him in my arms (oh, the miraculous healing qualities of a tender touch) and tell him that I love and that I need him. Then I would go to the phone and call the best psychiatrist in town.—Still Fighting

Dear Still: You are half way home. You'll make it, I am certain. Please write again six months from today. I'd like a progress report.

Dear Ann: Stop telling parents they should make their kids take music lessons no matter how much they hate to practice. My mother made me despise the piano because of her nagging. Now I wouldn't go across the street to hear Horowitz.

They called me the "Little Leasbreaker." Two sets of neighbors moved out of the building on account of me. One neighbor told me she had a headache for six months straight. I said I was sorry but my mother paid me ten cents an hour to practice and it was

Law For Today

Q. Don't all streams belong to the state? That's what I told a farmer who said I was trespassing, because I was fishing in a stream running through his property. I was in a boat so how could I be trespassing?

A. A stream or any flowing water that drains land is a public body of water. That means a farmer can't build a dam or otherwise hinder the flow of water unless he has permission from the state. The farmer can turn away fishermen, however. According to an Illinois statute, a person can't take fish from "the waters flowing over or standing on the land of another without the consent of the owner or occupant of the premises."

my only source of income. She said, "I'll give you 15 cents an hour if you don't."

I'm a father now with three kids of my own. None of them is musically inclined and I don't push it. If we want music, we turn on the hi-fi.—Peace

Dear Peace: And who do you think plays the music you hear on the hi-fi? Musicians who practiced, that's who!

Dear Ann Landers: I'm getting married soon and my mother and I are having a fuss over the invitations. Mom plans to have engraved on the bottom, "Please omit gift. We want their presence, not your presents."

I say it would be in poor taste. No etiquette book mentions this. Can you advise us?—Wrecksville

Dear W: I hope your mother will see it your way. No reference to gifts should appear on an invitation.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Sheb Wooley, singer-composer featured on "Hee Haw," weekly country music-variety show presented Sundays (8-9 p.m.) in color on the CBS Television Network, has composed many of his 1,000 songs while flying. "I usually jot the musical notation down, but I don't have to," he says. "I have always been able to remember a melody I composed. Musicians say I have stereophonic ears."

Art Linkletter, host of "The Linkletter Show" on the CBS Television Network, wonders why nothing makes a wife more skeptical than when her husband tells the truth.

SOULFUL EXPLOSION! "Mr. Dynamite," James Brown, joins Mike Douglas as his co-host for a week sparked with soul sounds on The Mike Douglas Show on channel 20 3:30-5 p.m. beginning July 14.

Benny Gets Red Carpet Treatment

Liberace, resplendent pianist and gracious host, rolls out the red carpet for guest Jack Benny on the premiere of "The Liberator Show" Tuesday, July 15, (7:30-8:30 p.m.) in color on the CBS Television Network.

Comedy and music are highlighted by other guests on the international bill, including The Bachlors, Irish singing group; Australian comedy-musical star Rolf Harris; and pretty young British singer Susan Maughan. "The Liberator Show," summer replacement for "The Red Skelton Hour," is produced in London, England. Richard Wattis, as Liberace's "gentleman's gentleman," and Georgina Moon, as his maid, are regular cast members.

Max Baer, who appears as a yokel on "The Beverly Hillbillies" on the CBS Television Network, is a graduate of Santa Clara University, where he studied commerce and philosophy.

Actor Like Matthau Gives Korman Hope

By JOAN CROSBY
 NEA Entertainment Editor
 NEW YORK (NEA)—Harvey Korman is one of the nicest, most talented and constantly looked-at-but-never-seen actors in the business.

Harvey Korman

Consider the fact that for the entire run of Danny Kaye's TV series, there was Harvey, unheralded, but backing up Danny accent-for-accent and characterization-for-characterization. Now working with another great comic, Carol Burnett, on her weekly CBS-TV series, Harvey is once again the perfect foil. But this time he has been noticed.

The series is in a production hiatus, so Harvey came to town to talk about his part in "The April Fools," starring Jack Lennon.

"I play a friend of a friend of a friend," Harvey said. "The character was described as a boozy Madison Avenue girl chaser."

It's another Korman characterization, as removed from the man himself as comedy is from a soap opera.

After a long struggle in show business seemed to be getting him nowhere, Harvey planned to leave California with his wife. "Every time I hit a crucial point, I pray and this was one of the times He answered," Harvey said, his eyes looking up.

The answer turned into the Danny Kaye spot, which led directly to Carol's program.

He isn't working now because he couldn't see doing a month of summer stock and being away from his family.

"People said it would be fun. Well, it wouldn't. Doing the same thing every night is a drag. What would be fun is doing another movie."

He wouldn't mind becoming a movie star. He feels there is hope for him. "An actor like Walter Matthau gives all us 6-foot-3 Jews hope. If he can become a movie star, maybe we can, too."

DAVIS ON HILBILLES

Sammy Davis, Jr., will make a cameo appearance on "The Beverly Hills" in an episode to be broadcast next fall on the CBS Television Network.

CRIME LAB IDENTIFIES SLAYER'S GUN

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The State Police crime laboratory said Thursday it has positively identified a .22-caliber semi-automatic pistol recovered from the Huron River as the weapon used to slay Margaret Phillips, 25, a University of Michigan coed.

The gun was found in mud earlier in the day in an area where Ernest Bishop Jr., 28, charged with the slaying, said it may have landed when he tossed it off a bridge that carries U.S. 23 over the river and north out of Ann Arbor.

The discovery of the seven-shot Bernardelli pistol ended a 3½ day search by Ann Arbor police and State Police skindivers using metal detecting and other equipment.

An official at the crime lab in Plymouth, Mich., said it would be a day or two before it could be determined if the gun had been used in the murder of two other Michigan coeds, law student Jane Louise Mixer, 23, and art graduate Alice Kalom, 21.

Both were shot in the head with .22-caliber bullets.

His empty trimaran, the Teighmouth Electron, was found by the British freighter Picardy. The ship radioed that the yacht's sails were set, indicating it was travelling when abandoned. The radio report also said Crowhurst's dinghy and life raft were aboard.

The only contestant to finish so far is Robin Knox-Johnston, who made the voyage in 312 days aboard his ketch Suhali. Eleven yachts began the race but all but Knox-Johnston and Crowhurst had dropped out.

YOUR BIRTHDAY and HOROSCOPE

SATURDAY, JULY 12 — Born today, you have organizational ability beyond the ordinary and, if you are wise and well directed, will use this talent to carry yourself and others to the top of your chosen profession. One of those capable not only of conceiving ideas, but of selecting the right people to bring ideas first to the planning stage and ultimately to the point of being profitable projects, you could easily build a business from a shoestring—your own or someone else's.

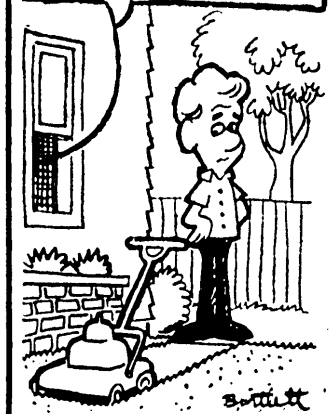

You believe that work is best accomplished in peace and harmony. For this reason you will not tolerate disruptive conditions or quarrelsome people if you can help it. You will, in fact, work first for the improvement of your employment surroundings—even before you begin to work toward those ends which bring a material benefit to all concerned. Such an attitude may at times cause you grief—but it will often bring success.

Two Fliers Released By Soviet Union

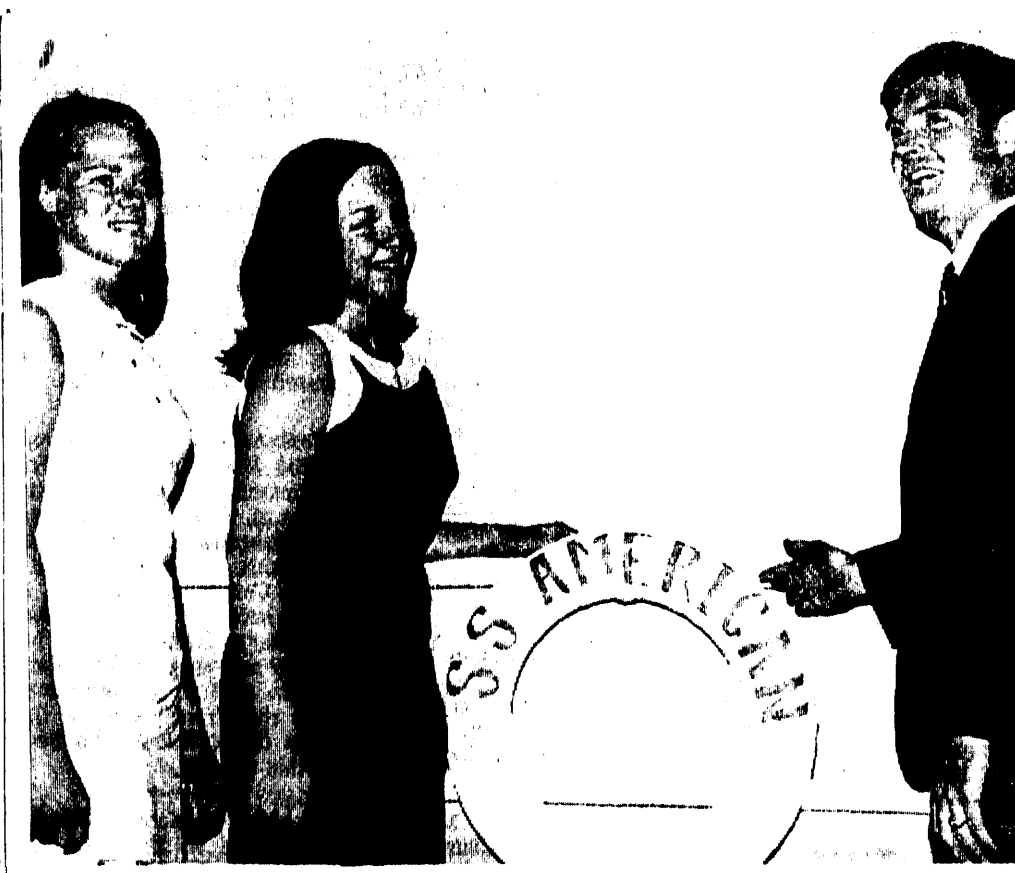

MOSCOW (AP) — Two fliers from the United States and West Germany have been released by the Soviet Union after being held a week for straying across the border, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said Friday.

He said Lt. Col. George Patterson of Chamblee, Ga., and Dr. Karl Sichelstiel were told they could continue on their way to Turkey, their destination in a light plane early when they made an emergency landing in Soviet territory on the Black Sea coast July 4.

The spokesman said the men were to leave the Black Sea town of Batumi as soon as weather permitted. "The chances are they have already taken off for Turkey," he said.

The release was announced by the Soviet Foreign Ministry this morning in a phone call to the U.S. Embassy. The Foreign Ministry said Soviet officials who investigated the incident near the Turkish border concluded the men would not be put on trial for a border violation, the U.S. spokesman said.

Patterson, 39, is an aviation officer with the 3rd Infantry Division in Wuerzburg, West Germany. He and Sichelstiel were detained at Batumi, a port at the east end of the Black Sea, and later taken to Tbilisi, the capital of Soviet Georgia in the Caucasus, the spokesman said.

Begin Search For Missing Yachtsman

LONDON (AP) — An air and sea search began Friday for Donald Crowhurst, 36, a Briton whose three-hulled yacht was found empty Thursday about 700 miles west of the Azores.

The U.S. Air Force 40th Air Rescue Squadron at Ramstein, West Germany, sent out a big Hercules search plane while the British Royal Navy issued a radio call asking ships in the area to look for Crowhurst.

Crowhurst's agent and friend, Rodney Hallworth, said he received a message from him last month in which Crowhurst reported his food supplies were low and he was low on drinking water.

"There has been a lot of speculation about what happened to Don and it is too early yet to put forward any positive theory," Hallworth said. "The mystery may never be solved."

Crowhurst made his last radio report three days ago and said the sea was calm. He seemed to be in a good position to win the $12,000 first prize for the fastest circumnavigation of the globe in a race organized by a London newspaper. He had been at sea 262 days.

His empty trimaran, the Teighmuth Electron, was found by the British freighter Picardy. The ship radioed that the yacht's sails were set, indicating it was travelling when abandoned. The radio report also said Crowhurst's dinghy and life raft were aboard.

The only contestant to finish so far is Robin Knox-Johnston, who made the voyage in 312 days aboard his ketch Suhali. Eleven yachts began the race but all but Knox-Johnston and Crowhurst had dropped out.

N.Y. Politics Now Embarrass Demo Leaders

WASHINGTON (AP) — New York City's tangled political situation, already a Republican headache, is producing a bit of embarrassment for national Democrats, too.

Democratic National Chairman Fred R. Harris has chosen so far to avoid endorsing his party's nominee for mayor of New York City, Mario A. Proccacino.

"I don't intend as of now to get involved in the New York race," Harris said Thursday.

He did get involved in an earlier mayoral contest, that in Los Angeles.

In that race, officially non-partisan, the party chairman gave his personal endorsement to Thomas Bradley, the Negro city councilman who ultimately was defeated by Mayor Samuel Yorty.

Harris recorded a radio tape for use in the Bradley campaign. He said he acted there at the request of the Los Angeles County Democratic Central Committee.

Proccacino, now city controller, won his Democratic nomination in a primary election.

In practical terms, the difference is obvious: Bradley had the support of California's Democratic hierarchy; Proccacino's nomination, after a campaign in which he hewed to a conservative line, left New York Democrats in disarray.

Conservative John J. Marchi defeated Mayor John V. Lindsay to win the Republican nomination.

But Republican National Chairman Rogers C. Morton, who said in advance of the primary that Lindsay was his personal choice, has endorsed Marchi as the GOP nominee. So has President Nixon.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller accepted the primary outcome, but liberal and moderate Republicans.

publicans, including both New York senators, stuck with Lindsay, who is running as the Liberal Party nominee.

Despite the intramural split, a spokesman said the Republican National Committee is prepared to help Marchi if he seeks assistance.

But the Republicans are concentrating on assisting their candidates in odd-year elections for governor of Virginia and New Jersey, not on the New York campaign.

Harris said he does not know whether the Democratic organization will do anything in those two state contests.

Chain Reaction

With great ceremony, the boy gave the lead domino a gentle poke. A rapid series of sharp clicks proceeded down the line, paused briefly at a gap too large, then continued onward. Then, abruptly, everything was still.

He was tickled speechless. He clapped his pudgy hands together and gave me a big, proud smile.

Giving our faith to God is like pushing over that first domino. It starts a chain reaction—one that results in a richer life, greater happiness and a deeper confidence in ourselves and in the future.

Why not come to church this Sunday?

Let God start a chain reaction in your life.

Religion In The News

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Out of the murkiness of the present commotion and changes in the churches, a Protestant scholar has taken a long look at the eventual results of it all—and he sees some shockers ahead.

Among them: The disappearance of sermons and Sunday morning church services; growing interest in Jesus and less in the mystery of God; broad church consolidations; multiple memberships by some believers in more than one church.

The Rev. Dr. Roland W. Tapp, of Philadelphia, a United Presbyterian specialist in religious education, says "part of the upheaval now going on in the churches is temporary, but much of it will have permanent effects."

Recently on a three-month research assignment for analysis and planning, Dr. Tapp said in an interview that indications are that the organizational structures of churches "are not going to make it" to the end of the century.

"The long-range prospects are good for essential Judeo-Christianity, but not for the institutions," he said.

Dr. Tapp, a one-time missionary, California pastor and World War II bomber pilot, is a former professor of psychology and philosophy of religion at Kentucky's Center College and of Biblical languages at San Francisco Theological Seminary.

He offered his lively preview of the future church at a recent gathering of religious publishers.

Items on the forecast included: —A re-enactment of the fundamentalist-liberal fight of 60 years ago . . . It already has resulted in a marked polarization of the church at all levels . . . The split may become irreparable.

—With Protestants and Roman Catholics "no longer in real dispute" over major doctrines, they will move increasingly toward "merger at practical levels"—between fundamental Protestants and fundamental Catholics, and between liberal Protestants and liberal Catholics.

—Most institutional members will be 45 years old, and up. "There will be a steady decrease in total membership...fewer youths will join the church."

—On the other hand, there will be "increasing interest in religion and Christianity" among college students and young adults but "they will continue to avoid the institutional church."

—Christian teachers will see themselves "more as fellow-seekers" rather than "transmitters of an heritage." They "will be more interested in Jesus and less in God" even though this seems a "flat contradiction in Biblical terms."

—The Consultation on Church Union will bring unification of major Protestant denominations amid "great wailing and gnashing of teeth" but the new connective church "will be no more of a monolith than it is now."

—Sermons are out. And so is the Sunday morning worship service at 11 o'clock. The death rattle will be long and loud and gruesome.

—The main theological shift will be away from the doctrine of divine transcendence toward a "doctrine of pantheism," which holds that "God is in everything," in contrast from pantheism, which says "God is everything."

—Racial integration "will be a fact within the churches . . . It already is a workable everyday fact at headquarters levels."

—Church property, valued to $80 billion, will go on tax rolls. "In a pluralistic society with Christians rapidly becoming a minority, this kind of tax-exempt wealth simply cannot be tolerated. It won't be."

Storing Wedding Gown Is No Problem for Them

By POLLY CRAMER
DEAR POLLY and Mrs. L. S. V. — The important thing when storing a wedding dress is that it must be clean. Often one looks clean but slight body soils can cause trouble during storage. Wrap the clean dress carefully in lots of blue tissue paper, perhaps stuffing it be- tween folds and inside the body and folds. Place in a large box, carton or fur box so there will be as few folds as possible. Place more tissue on top of the dress. Seal the box with mask- ing tape and be sure that every seam and opening is airtight.

DEAR POLLY—I recommend that Mrs. L. S. V. take her wed- ding gown to a professional firm for packing. Mine is preserved in this way so that, hopefully, my daughter, 3, will wear it some day. The fee for this varies according to the

Heat And Drought Hurt Dixie Crops

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A sticky heat wave, scorching the South with oven-hot temperatures since early summer, has caused crop and pasture losses totaling millions of dollars.

The nation's capital, caught in its worst drought in 97 years, may need mandatory water rationing if heavy rains don't come.

Air conditioner sales are soaring in some cities.

Georgia farmers face some $200 million in crop losses if the drought continues, says Tommy Irvin, state agriculture commissioner. And Richard Beard, Alabama's agriculture commissioner, estimates his state's crop losses already are between $12 million and $15 million.

Alabama is having its worst drought since 1951, said Beard. Corn, soybeans and cotton have been some of the hardest hit crops in most southern states.

The hot, dry weather which has soared to 106 degrees in some Mississippi counties, has extensively damaged that state's watermelon crop. And Louisiana, Arkansas and Tennessee officials report those states have suffered some crop damage and are now reaching the critical stage.

"Next week, it'll be an all-out crisis," said one Tennessee producer.

Forests are so dry in northwest Louisiana and east Texas that foresters on vacation are being called back on a standby basis, said J. Y. Oakes of the Louisiana State Experiment Station. Pastures are parched and the woodlands situation is serious.

The broiling heat is even affecting broilers—chickens, that is.

"Chickens are just like you and me," said Alabama's agriculture commissioner. "They just lie around in all this heat and don't do anything."

In Mississippi, where poultry is a major industry, farmers and processors report chickens are dying in increasing numbers, both in hen houses and en route to the processing plant.

Broiler size is declining and egg production is down. Seven southwest Georgia counties have requested disaster funds because of the drought damage. Farmers have cut back their estimates of peanut and tobacco production.

"It's looking like the drought years of 1930 and 1944," said G. J. Green, county agent for St. Francis County, Ark. "The cotton is spotted, soybeans critical, pastures are burning and the rice farmers are keeping their wells running all night because of the evaporation."

In Louisiana, cotton "is literally standing still," said Oakes.

Sit-In Ends After Meeting About Cairo

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — A short-lived sit-in at the governor's office ended Friday after a meeting between the blacks and whites of Cairo was set up for Tuesday.

Attending the meeting will be the United Front, representing the blacks, and the retail merchants and city officials of the bitterly divided town.

The invitation to meet with the governor was extended by Roger Nathan, chairman of the human relations commission in place of Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie who was in Chicago.

Leaders of the United Fronts of Cairo and East St. Louis had come to the office saying they would stay until Ogilvie's scheduled Tuesday return if necessary.

The primarily black groups had earlier requested meetings with Ogilvie and Atty. Gen. William Scott.

A telegram sent Thursday night to the Cairo front didn't catch up with the group until Friday morning in Springfield.

In the telegram Ogilvie urged front leaders "to take all opportunities to meet with Cairo merchants and officials to resolve differences locally."

The front has been boycotting the Cairo stores for more than 13 weeks. Violence in the town has been held down only by the stationing of a force of state troopers.

Charles Koen said his group had tried to meet with the merchants and officials of Cairo "but the problems cannot be solved in Cairo."

Scott was also out of town and the group refused to meet with his aides, who, they said, had come to Cairo and accomplished nothing.

A resolution distributed by Koen quoted a survey citing Cairo as the poorest city in the state, and close to the top in unemployment and substandard housing.

The resolution asks the attorney general to support the removal of Alexander County District Attorney Peyton Berling, an admitted organizer of the vigilante White Hats group.

SBA Director Resignation Handed In WASHINGTON (AP) — The director of the Small Business Administration's minority enterprise program—a keystone of President Nixon's campaign pledge to promote "Black Capitalism"—has resigned abruptly after four months in office.

An SBA spokesman confirmed Friday the resignation of Philip Pruitt, a Negro who joined the Nixon administration as an assistant SBA administrator. "I don't know if it's final yet," he said.

The spokesman, James Reed, assistant administrator for congressional and public officers, declined to give the reasons for Pruitt's sudden move. He said they would have to come from Pruitt.

Pruitt, a former Wall Street investment banker, was not immediately available for comment.

"It was certainly not a firing," Reed said. "I don't want it to sound like that. The administrator (Hilary Sandoval Jr.) was happy with Phil. He worked like hell."

Pruitt, 32, had been operating under assorted strains. The Civil Service Commission deferred granting him permanent status in the $30,000-a-year job, so he kept his post through a series of 30-day emergency extensions.

Relations between Pruitt and Republicans on the Senate Select Committee on Small Business were strained. At one point, participants privately acknowledged Pruitt abruptly ended a telephone conversation with the committee's minority counsel by hanging up when pressed for details on a minority loan proposal.

He refused also early in his tenure to allow two SBA minority enterprise specialists to move to the Department of Commerce—the Cabinet-level agency President Nixon placed in charge of developing a minority enterprise program.

The minority program itself, focus of SBA activity under former administrator Howard Samuels, a Democrat, also has come under criticism, particularly from Negro leaders.

Whitney Young, executive director of the National Urban League, was quoted recently as saying: "Black capitalism is a sham. Mr. Nixon's campaign rhetoric has never been followed up by any concrete plans or proposals."

OFFICE BORE IS HEALTH HAZARD

LONDON (AP) — The loud-mouth office bore and even the fellow at the next desk who taps his teeth with his pencil are health hazards, says London's deputy health and medical officer, Dr. Dilwyn Jones. He told a conference opening a week-long "quiet city" campaign: "What is a hell of a row to one man is a comparatively interesting sound to another."

About 40 per cent of the families in Pittsburgh, Pa., have annual incomes below $4,000.

Medical Experts Approve Apollo Astronauts

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A seven-man team of medical experts pronounced the Apollo 11 astronauts Friday "ready for flight" as the countdown to their moon voyage ticked on schedule toward a Wednesday liftoff.

Dr. Charles A. Berry, chief astronaut physician, said crewmen Neil A. Armstrong, Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Michael Collins passed their final major physical examination with ease. "Neil, Mike and Buzz appeared in good spirits," said Berry. "Their physical state looks good. A review of all elements of today's medical data indicates that the Apollo 11 crew is ready for flight."

The four-hour examination was the last of three which provided data for a computer-stored medical profile that will alert doctors instantly if physical changes occur with the astronauts during or after the lunar landing. Information from the physical examination will be particularly important when Armstrong and Aldrin are walking on the lunar surface July 21.

As they work, computers in Mission Control will constantly compare the heart rates, oxygen consumption and suit temperatures on the moon with what is known about the astronauts on earth. This is to assure, for example, that the spacemen do not become so exhausted that they cannot safely return to their lunar module—LM—landing craft.

Following the checkup, Armstrong and Aldrin climbed into an LM trainer while Collins worked in a command ship simulator. With the two trainer craft linked electronically, the spacemen rehearsed how the LM will land on the moon July 20, blast off the lunar surface the next day and rendezvous with Collins in the mother ship. The Apollo 11 crew received best wishes from Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie, who toured Cape Kennedy Friday. He spoke to the spacemen over a telephone hookup from the Apollo launch control center.

At the launch pad, technicians tested fuel tanks in the LM landing craft and wrestled with minor problems as work continued on schedule toward meeting Apollo 11's launch time of 9:32 a.m. EDT Wednesday.

The most critical period in the countdown is expected during a four-hour period beginning at midnight Monday, Petrone said. "That's when everything starts to cook, when everything starts to move."

During that period, ground power sources will be removed from the rocket and the vehicle will go on internal battery power. Tests will be made of the emergency detection system that senses trouble spots in the rocket and workmen will load super-cold helium in the spacecraft.

DINNER HONORS DONALD BARNETT OF ROODHOUSE

ROODHOUSE — A birthday dinner was served July 3 at the Blackhawk restaurant in Jacksonville honoring Donald Barnett, local businessman, who was observing his anniversary on that date.

Attending besides Mr. and Mrs. Barnett were their son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Barnett.

On their return home Mr. and Mrs. Donald Barnett found two full-grown maple trees uprooted in their yard. The trees were felled by the storm earlier in the evening and had fallen west to east in front of the house, missing it and the yard light by less than a foot.

Voting Rights Calls Forth Mitchell Plea

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell testified Friday that legislation proposed by the Nixon administration would strengthen the 1965 Voting Rights Act and protect Negroes in all of the nation.

He told the Senate judiciary subcommittee on constitutional rights that a simple 5-year extension of the 1965 law would be inadequate, that it would leave "the undereducated ghetto Negro as today's forgotten man in voting rights legislation."

Mitchell made no reference to the overwhelming voice-vote approval Thursday by a House judiciary subcommittee of a bill to extend the present law without change. The House unit ignored the administration proposal.

At the Senate hearing, Sens. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., and Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., contended the administration bill would weaken enforcement of voting rights by eliminating a requirement of the 1965 act that requires states and counties to get advance clearance from the Justice Department for changing their voting laws.

But Mitchell told them that on the contrary "our proposal is stronger" and provides a better method of preventing election law changes that would discriminate against Negroes seeking to register and vote.

And aside from this one change, he said, the administration bill retains all the safeguards of the 1965 act while broadening it to apply to all 50 states, to eliminate residency requirements for voting in presidential elections, and to set up a commission to look into voting frauds.

Civil rights leaders concede privately that they figure they can count on only three of the subcommittee's eight members to support a simple 5-year extension of the present law.

However, the House Judiciary Committee is expected next week to follow the lead of its subcommittee in approving an extension bill rather than the nationwide measure urged by the administration.

GENERAL TELEPHONE HIRES EXTRA CREWS

A spokesman for General Telephone Company Friday morning said several extra telephone installer crews would be moved into the Jacksonville service area over the weekend to install new phones and move others at customer request. He said the recent storm damage had been restored but that several orders for customer-requested services would be cleared up over the weekend.

Susan Outlives Tragic Evening

UKIAH, Calif. (AP) — It was a typical Mendocino County summer evening, the weather balmy, the sky clear, and young Timothy Luce was troubled. His car wasn't behaving.

With his girl friend, Susan Diane Bartolomei, he was driving back to Ukiah from a Hopland junkyard where he had purchased some parts. The old heap broke down.

Shortly, a car with two apparent good Samaritans stopped and the driver offered a ride.

Tim and Susan hopped in—and the quiet summer evening became a night of horror.

The driver and his companion were two youths on a violent crime spree that had started in the Pacific Northwest.

Tim, 17, son of the Lake County district attorney, was quickly shot dead. Susan, also 17, was forcibly raped, savagely beaten and shot and left to die on a roadside near Sonoma, 200 miles away.

Despite five bullets in her head, Susan survived and slowly began what doctors now describe as an almost miraculous partial recovery.

She was in a coma month after month, unable to respond with anything more than a flickering of eyelashes.

Several times, Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Bartolomei were told that their daughter's brown eyes might never open again.

But they did. That first tragic night was Aug. 21, 1967.

Six months later, Susan recovered complete consciousness, but she was paralyzed and speechless.

Recovering sufficiently to enter a courtroom in a wheelchair, she testified, using hand signals for the most part.

Thomas Braun and Leonard Maine, both 20, of Ritzville, Wash., were convicted of murder.

Maine was sentenced to life imprisonment and Braun to death in the gas chamber.

Susan continued her struggle. After seven months in the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco, she was transferred to a Ukiah hospital, then eventually taken home.

Once believed hopelessly paralyzed from the chest down, Susan now takes a few steps every evening—but only while holding on to someone on either side of her.

Her vocal chords were removed during a tracheotomy to aid her breathing shortly after she was found. But with the aid of a voice vibrator, she is now conversing. The words "aren't very clear yet," but she is just starting this method of speech, her mother said.

To a visiting newsman, she said a few words and smiled brightly. Her mother said the smile was bright as ever.

With her wheelchair, Susan gets out as much as possible.

Now that she's up and around, her fellow townspeople in this community of 10,350 population are showering her with affectionate attention.

Meanwhile, she continues her daily effort to regain use of her legs.

Her morale is high.

Pentagon Tells Of Open-Air Gas Tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon disclosed Friday it is conducting open air tests of lethal nerve gas at three widely scattered locations across the country.

The military also unveiled the extent and nature of its program in documents supplied to a House government operations subcommittee.

In addition to the Dugway Proving Ground in Utah, where about 5,000 sheep were accidentally killed last year by nerve gas, the deadly gases are being tested at the Edgewood Arsenal in Maryland and at Ft. McClellan, Ala.

The gases include Tabun, Sarin, Soman, VX—which was responsible for the sheep kill—and mustard, according to the Army documents.

The gases are packed in bombs, landmines, mortars, artillery shells and rockets.

The documents are the first admission that open air gas tests have been conducted at locations outside Dugway, committee sources said.

The Army said it tested 67 different gas weapons at Dugway and 47 at Ft. McClellan between April and June of this year. About 110 were to be tested either in the same three-month period or during the first quarter of the current fiscal year at Edgewood.

The open air tests at Ft. McClellan were limited to decontamination and detection exercises, the documents said. The army said that portions of mustard gas and two types of nerve gas are poured on a surface for training purposes.

An information officer at Ft. McClellan issued this statement: "Any statement that open air testing is conducted at Ft. McClellan is in error. Small amounts of lethal chemical agents only—no biologicals—are used in defensive training exercises to train personnel in decontamination, detection and explosive ordnance demolition procedures. As an example a toxic chemical agent such as mustard would be poured on an empty artillery shell and the EOD team undergoing training would be directed to decontaminate the shell. There has been no open air biological testing since Oct. 1967. There has never been open air biological testing at Ft. McClellan."

The Army said it will have tested 358 additional devices at Dugway and 129 at Edgewood during the next three months—a marked rise over the testings for the last quarter of fiscal 1969.

The weapons contain gas ranging in amount from a few grams to about 10 pounds.

Subcommittee Chairman Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., said the Army is continuing to classify and withhold certain information. He said this included the type, nature, quantity, height of release and similar data on chemical munitions under development.

The reason given for continued classification, he said, is that the Army believes such information might enable potential enemies to devise defensive systems or techniques.

"However, I am gratified that the Army has recognized the public interest by revealing the general extent of open air testing of poisonous compounds," he said.

Hawk's Slam Lifts Indians Past Tigers 8-1

DETROIT (AP) — Sam McDowell hurled a four-hitter and Ken "Hawk" Harrelson hit a grand slam homer in a six-run third inning that carried Cleveland to an 8-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers Friday night.

McDowell, 11-4, struck out six, increasing his American League-leading total to 141.

The Indians, blanked for the first two innings by starter Joe Sparrma, pushed across a pair of runs on an error by first baseman Bill Freehan, Zoilo Versalles' single, McDowell's sacrifice fly and a run-scoring single by Jose Cardenal.

After Sparrma walked Duke Sims and Tony Horton to load the bases, he was replaced by Gary Patterson before Harrelson unloaded his 14th homer of the year and second career grand slam. It landed at the 400-foot mark in the lower left-center seats.

Sims singled in a pair of runs in the ninth.

Jim Price hit a solo homer for the Tigers with two out in the ninth.

AUTOGRAF BOOTH SET UP BY CUBS

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs are being hounded so hotly for signatures that management opened an autograph booth at the ball park Friday.

It is under the third base grandstand behind the Cub dug-out.

Each afternoon, around noon, three Cubs will be in the booth for a half hour. A schedule has been set up for a new trio each day.

"We are going to try and accommodate all the youngsters and the people we are unable to sign autographs for after the games in the players' parking lot," said Phil Regan, Cubs' player representative.

"A lot of mothers have written us complaining that we did not sign for their children. We think the booth idea will correct the situation."

Bianci Retires

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Al Bianchi, Seattle Supersonic coach, announced Friday he is resigning.

Bianchi had coached the team two seasons since Seattle was admitted to the National Basketball Association. He still had a year remaining on a three-year contract.

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie McCovey, Hank Aaron, Ron Santo and Don Kessinger are the repeaters in the National League All-Star line-up announced Friday that also included Johnny Bench, Felix Millan, Matty Alou and Cleon Jones as first-time starters.

McCovey, the San Francisco Giants' homer-hitting first baseman, was the top vote getter in the poll of players, coaches and managers for the team to face the American League July 22 at Washington.

McCovey had 296 votes and Aaron, the Atlanta Braves' right fielder who was named for the 15th time, received 295 votes.

The voting competition was hottest at second and third base. Millan of the Atlanta Braves beat out Glenn Beckert of Chicago for second base, 17-110 and Santo of the Cubs held off the challenge of Cincinnati's Tony Perez for third base, 196-151. Players were not permitted to vote for their own teammates.

Pitchers and the remainder of the 28-man squad will be named by manager Red Schoendienst of the St. Louis Cardinals and announced later.

The American League starters, to be managed by Mayo Smith of the Detroit Tigers, were announced Thursday. The eight starters were catcher Bill Freehan of Detroit, first baseman Boog Powell of Baltimore, second baseman Rod Carew of Minnesota, third baseman Sal Bando of Oakland, shortstop Rico Petrocelli of Boston and outfielders Frank Robinson of Baltimore, Reggie Jackson of Oakland and Frank Howard of Washington.

Among the missing in the National ranks were such as Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh, a four-time batting champion; Pete Rose of Cincinnati, the 1968 batting champ and Jerry Grote of New York, the starting catcher last year who did not get a single vote this time.

Willie McCovey, who holds many All-Star records and won last year's 1-0 game in Houston, was sixth among the outfielders but could be named to the squad by manager Schoendienst.

Bench was an easy winner for the catching job. The Cincinnati star piled up a 261-76 margin over Randy Hundley of Chicago. McCovey breezed at first base 296-33 over Cincinnati's Lee May, his closest competitor. Kessinger, second Cub to make the team, had a 228-103 margin over Denis Menke of Houston for shortstop although Menke also got 19 votes as a second baseman.

Asked To Avoid Quincy-Grafton Area On River

SPRINGFIELD — Pleasure boaters were asked today by the Illinois Department of Conservation to avoid the Mississippi river from Quincy to Grafton.

Ordinarily, this is a high priority boating area. But the river stage in the area is higher now than earlier this spring when the flood crest was the third highest in history.

Ken Gruenewald, department supervisor for the boating, asked pleasure boaters to stay away from this portion of the river until the water recedes. Boat wakes may drive debris into the walls of flooded homes, break windows, crack plaster and cause other structural damage, Gruenewald said.

Boaters are liable for damage caused by their wakes and may be fined up to $2000 for violating this federal regulation, he warned. Also, they may be imprisoned for a year.

Conservation officers are on duty to enforce boating regulations and to insure that boaters do not cause damage to private property.

Residents of a flooded area have enough problems without having their troubles compounded by thoughtless pleasure boaters, Gruenewald concluded.

Low To Lease New Apartment, Doors Raised

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Low Alcindor, 7-foot-13½ inch center for the Milwaukee Bucks of the National Basketball Association will lease a plush apartment in Milwaukee beginning Sept. 1, and while proprietors may not be raising the roof, they are raising a few doors.

Alcindor, 22, was a three-time All-American at UCLA and signed with the Bucks for an undisclosed figure that reportedly surpassed $1 million.

The high-scoring center has chosen to take up residence in swank Juneau Village on the city's East Side and though he hasn't yet selected his apartment, officials of the three-building complex have assured him they will remodel it for his comfort.

Alcindor has his own oversized bed, which will be shipped to Milwaukee from the West Coast. Doorways will be enlarged and new extra-long doors already have been ordered. Also, some ceiling lights which now hang down, will be moved flush with the ceiling.

The new panel members selected for a one-year term by the Tournament Policy Board are Deane Beman, 31, Bethesda, Md.; Bob Dickson, 25, Tulsa, Okla.; Grier Jones, 23, Wichita, Kan.; Dick Lotz, 26, Hayward, Calif.; Bob Smith, 26, Sacramento, Calif.; Dudley Wysong, 30, McKinney, Tex.; and Kermit Zarley, 27, Houston.

McLaren, Hulme Let Lap Record At Watkins Glen

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — New Zealanders Bruce McLaren and Dennis Hulme posted an all-time lap record for the Watkins Glen course Friday while a sleek new French Alfa moved in to challenge Porsche's domination of international endurance racing.

McLaren and Hulme, preparing for Sunday's third event in the $1 million Canadian-American Challenge Cup series of road races, were credited with laps of 132.31 and 131.68 miles per hour, respectively, in their bright Orange Group 7 cars designed and built by McLaren.

The fastest previous lap by any machine for the demanding 2.3-mile Glen course was 128.97 mph by Mario Andretti during the 1968 U.S. Grand Prix for Formula 1 cars.

Krausse opened the third with his hit, moved to third when Jose Tartabull beat out a bunt and scored as Ted Kubiak rapped into a double play.

Jacklin Takes Lead

LYTHAM-ST. ANNES, England (AP) — Tony Jacklin, the 25-year-old Englishman now at home on the United States circuit, took a two-stroke lead Friday over Irishman Christy O'Connor and New Zealander Bob Charles after three rounds of the 1969 British Open Golf championship.

A total of 46 players, including nine Americans, made the cut at 222 for 54 holes over the Royal Lytham and St. Annes links beside the Irish Sea, where par is 35-36-71.

Jacklin shot a one-under-par 70 Friday and wound up with a five-under-par total for three rounds of 68-70-70-208.

O'Connor had a 71-65-74-210.

Tony Jacklin

and Charles, left-handed winner of the crown on this same course in 1963, carded 71-65-74-210.

Roberto De Vicenzo, the 46-year-old Argentine, shot a sparkling 66-only one off the record set by O'Connor Thursday—and together with five-time winner Peter Thomson of Australia was only three shots behind Jacklin. Thomson had a 70 for his third round.

Jack Nicklaus of Columbus, Ohio, pulled his game together with a 68 for a three round total of 213. Brian Huggett of England has the same mark.

The last Briton to win this crown—first competed for 109 years ago—was Max Faulkner in 1951.

A gallery of 15,000 swarmed over the links on a changeable day, one minute it was overcast and windy and the next sunny and calm.

Jacklin, now attached to the Sea Island Country Club of Brunswick, Ga., went out in 34—one under par—and came home in 36.

A couple of Americans—33-year-old Davis Love of Atlanta, and Bert Yancey of Tallahassee, Fla.—were on the 214 mark. Both shot 71s in the third round but Orville Moody, the reigning U.S. Open champion from Killian, Tex., blew to a 74.

Baeza Will Try Chopper Double This Afternoon

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Braulio Baeza will take a helicopter trip Saturday afternoon from Aqueduct on New York's Long Island to Monmouth Park on the New Jersey shore in hopes of winning both the $81,900 Dwyer Handicap at Aqueduct and the $114,800 Amory L. Haskell Handicap at Monmouth Park.

Baeza will ride King of the Castle, 120, expected to be a top choice in the Dwyer, and then will hop to Jersey where he will be up on top-weighted Mr. Right, 120, in the Haskell.

As the winner of the Dwyer will get $53,235 and the winner of the Haskell will take home $74,620, it is possible that Baeza could wind up with a 10 per cent rider's share of $127,855 for the afternoon.

Long after Baeza finishes his afternoon's work, a field of six will be going in the $162,100 Hollywood Gold Cup in California, a 1 1/4-mile race with $102,100 for the winner.

Nodouble will be making his sixth start of the year in a $100,000-added race. He has won two, finished first but was disqualified once and came home second in the other two.

Eddie Belmonte is due to fly in from New York to ride Nodouble as usual. The 4-year-old colt will carry 120 pounds. Others to go for the Gold Cup are Poleax, 118; Rising Market, 122; Figneron, 115; Rivet, 112, and Apex 2nd, 111.

The Haskell at Monmouth has a field of 12 with Mr. Right conceding from four to 19 pounds to his rivals. Top opposition in the 1 1/4-mile race is expected from Champion, 111, who would move up if it is a muddy track and Sly Bird, 115, Verbatim, 116, and Beau Marker, 113.

A field of six 3-year-olds will go in the Dwyer where Jay Ray, 119, with Manuel Yeaza up, is the likely chief contention for Baeza's King of the Castle over the 1 1/4-mile distance.

ROCKFORD, Ill. (AP) — Four of the country's top collegiate golfers advanced to the semifinals of the 67th Western Amateur Golf tournament over the Rockford Country Club course.

The quartet was led by Howard Twitty, 20, of Phoenix, Ariz., who'll be a member of the Arizona State University team this fall who turned in a blazing afternoon round which included three eagles and two birdies to eliminate Tommy Watson of Kansas City, Mo., one up.

Twitty will meet Arizona University golfer Drue Johnson of Paris, Ill., who defeated Allen Miller of Pensacola, Fla., also one up.

The other semifinals match pairs Steve Melnyk of Brunswick, Ga., a University of Florida standout who eliminated Lynn Janson, East Lansing, Mich., the captain of the Michigan State team four and three, with Dean Overturf of Dallas, Tex.

In the morning first round play over this par 71, 6,777-yard layout Melnyk made quick work of the 72-hole medalist Pat Fitzsimons of Salem, Ore., four and three.

Overturf, the No. 3 player at the University of Texas defeated his team's No. 1 golfer Chip Stewart also of Dallas.

Stewart is the son of tour golfer Earl Stewart, who was in his son's gallery after failing to qualify in the Minnesota Golf Classic at Edina, Minn. Thursday.

Twitty and Watson, who is a member of the Stanford University squad, both turned in two under par 69s in their afternoon clash.

Twitty eagled the eighth, tenth and sixteenth holes under another blazing sun which sent the temperature to the near 90-degree mark. Twitty's eagle on the par four No. 16 came when he uncorked an amazing 100-yard chip shot before the bewildered Watson. His other eagles came on par five holes.

In other Friday morning first round match play rounds Janson whipped last year's Western Amateur medalist Bob Barbaress of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., four and three. Overturf sided with Pat Welch of Auburn, Ind., three and two, Stewart knocked off Dave Haberer, Edina, Minn., in the day's quickest match six and five. Miller sided with the only other Illinois member of the "sweet 16," George Noth, Jr., of River Forest while Johnson downed Bill Kratzert III of Fort Wayne, Ind., four and two. Watson dropped Andy North of Madison, Wis., three and two.

Twitty spoiled fellow Phoenix resident Paul Putter's 21st birthday celebration four and two.

Semifinals and finals are slated for Saturday.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Horace Clarke hit a first-pitch homer in a three-run first inning Friday night and the New York Yankees held on to beat the Washington Senators 4-3 for Mel Stottlemire's 13th victory.

The Yankees hopped on Barry Moore for three quick runs. Jerry Kenney followed Clarke's first homer of the season with a single and scored on Bobby Murcer's triple. Then Murcer came home on Joe Pepitone's sacrifice fly.

The Senators came back with a pair on Lee Maye's homer, a single by Frank Howard and Ken McMullen's double. The Yankees added a run in the fifth on Clarke's single and Pepitone's double, but the Senators matched it in their half on Del Unser's double and two infield outs, with Howard driving in the run.

NEW YORK (AP) — If present trends continue, the annual sales of bicycles in the United States will match automobile sales in a couple of years, and therein lies a surprising story of social change and marketing innovation.

Almost anyone could guess that bikes were rising in popularity, after seeing once sluggish neighbors pedalling rather than driving to the station and flocks of youngsters winging along in multicolored "high risers."

The sales figures are probably a bit higher than your guesses. As recently as 1960, about 3.6 million bikes were sold. By 1967 the figure had leaped to 6 million. It surged to 7.5 million last year and is expected to rise 12 per cent to 8.4 million in 1969.

The swing to bikes has at least two origins: old age and youth.

Dr. Paul Dudley White and others promoted the idea that pedalling was a wonderful form of exercise even for the elderly, and now thousands of miles of paths are appearing in cities that long had ignored the needs of cyclists.

A larger thrust, however, seems to have come from the youngsters. Seven years ago the partners in a San Diego bike shop observed teenagers buying odd parts and improvising their own vehicles.

Recognizing that the demand was there, the partners, Gene Randel and Marion Moore, assembled some bikes with high handlebars, elevated and elongated "banana" seats, and low-to-the-ground chassis. They sold swiftly.

Later on the major bike makers, long accustomed to turning out the same conventional product each year, caught on to the idea: youngsters wanted styling; they wanted innovation; they looked forward to new models each year; they desired options.

Wild options now are available, including pretzel handlebars, steering wheels instead of bars, multispeed gear shifts, front and rear shock absorbers, caliper hand brakes, console stick shifts and quilted backrests.

The most popular bike in America now is the high riser. That's the one with the high handlebars, elevated seat, back support or "sissy bar," and small wheels that make for maneuverability. It accounts for 75 per cent of sales.

However, for the adult who fears a fall, a tri-wheeler also is selling well. This is a conventional vehicle in most ways except for double wheels in the rear, along with a basket for carrying groceries or a briefcase.

All this has begun to push up prices. Of course, a high riser costs a minimum of about $35, and the addition of accessories can push up the price to $80 or so—even more if exotic parts are piled on.

And, as any product becomes more complex, so also does the servicing. As many fathers have learned in recent months, it can be a maddening job to change a tire when the gear box and torsion spring seat suspension are in the way.

CHICAGO (AP) — Major commodity futures prices advanced on the Chicago Board of Trade the past week, mainly on buying attributed to weather conditions and to a government report on crop prospects for this year.

Trade during the five full sessions was at best, fairly active and volume on Friday was highest for the week at an estimated 89,290,000 bushels traded.

When trade closed for the week on Friday, wheat was 7 1/2 cents a bushel higher, July 1.27 1/2; corn was 1/4 to 1 1/2 cents higher, July 1.27 1/2; oats were 1/2 to 1 1/2 cents lower, July 1.14; and soybeans were 1/2 to 1 cent higher, July 2.67 1/2. Soybean oil closed 1 to 1 1/2 points lower, July 7.75; soybean meal was 150 points lower to 30 points higher, July 76.00; choice steers closed 50 to 113 points lower, August 30.92; while feed brokers closed 12 to 112 points lower, July 32.60.

Corn futures on Monday advanced more than 3 cents a bushel, in one of the best one-day price rises of the year, largely on reports that heavy weekend rains in sections of the Corn Belt might have seriously set back crop growth.

Other commodities made little movement, but in the following days trade slowed down somewhat as seasoned participants turned aside, pending issuance of the government's 1969 crop production estimates as well as acreage to be harvested. When the figures were released late Thursday, there was some feeling they would have a bullish effect on futures. For a few moments at the opening of the next session, Friday, major commodities were sharply higher, then came under liquidation that brought losses to most contracts on the board.

Tips For Spotting Shady Fund Raisers

By CARLTON SMITH and RICHARD PUTNAM PRATT
(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)
Nothing curdles the enthusiasm for charitable giving quite so effectively as the suspicion that some or all of the donated money is being used to line the pockets of those doing the collecting.

Yet how do you know—when you're being braced for a donation—that the organization conducting the solicitation is honest and efficient? The answer is that you don't, and it is a tribute to Americans that they contribute upwards of $12 billion each year despite the possible hazards.

Actually, these hazards have been measurably reduced by the quiet functioning of a non-profit agency called the National Information Bureau. Since 1918, the NIB's efforts to put the finger on fraud and mismanagement in charitable fund-raising have helped to keep agencies on the straight and narrow.

Downright fraud is uncommon in this era of sophistication. But many operators are not above running a charity whose chief beneficiary is themselves, with a major portion of every dollar collected going into staff salaries and administrative expense. Among the abuses turned up by NIB investigators are:

1. No payment of commissions for fund-raising.

2. No mailing of unordered tickets or merchandise with a request for money in return.

3. No general telephone solicitations.

4. An annual audit by an independent agency showing all income and disbursement in detail.

5. A detailed annual budget translating program plans into financial terms.

And don't rely on prominent names on a letterhead as a guarantee of organizational purity. It may only mean that they have been as badly misled as you are about to be.

The NIB has found that such directors often have no say in the operations of the group and that actual control lies with a paid staff capable of voting themselves increases in salary whenever collections warrant.

—An organization that raises funds by mailing unordered goods, spending 79 cents from every dollar received for postage, promotion and merchandise, and some of the remaining 21 cents for administration.

—Another that took in more than $1 million annually for eight years and supported only 250 beneficiaries from accumulated assets worth more than $16 million.

NEW YORK (AP) — A technical advance that lost some of its early glitter in late trading Friday helped the stock market stem its steep slide and enabled it to close with the first gain in the averages this week.

But declines of individual issues finished with a tiny advantage over advances on the New York Stock Exchange.

After losing more than 38 points in the week's previous sessions, the Dow Jones industrial average took off from the start, and by 12:30 p.m. it was ahead 17.17 points. But it ran out of steam after that, and at the close it was up 4.46 at 852.25. The DJI closed Thursday's session at a new 1969 low of 847.79.

Trading on the New York Stock Exchange was the best of the week, with 11.73 million shares changing hands, compared with 11.45 million Thursday.

After an early lag, gains moved into a thin lead over losses, but the advantage later was 651 declined and 641 advanced.

There was one new high for the year—set by Marlennan Corp. (when issued)—and 239 new lows.

Among other market indicators: The Associated Press 60-stock average—which closed at a new low for the year of 302.4 Thursday—gained .4 to 302.8, with industrials up 2.3, rails off 1.5, and utilities up .8.

The Big Board index of some 1,200 common stocks rose 0.20 to 33.05.

Twelve of the 20 most-active issues on the New York Stock Exchange were higher, 7 lower, and 1 unchanged.

American Cyanamid, most-active largely on 2 blocks totaling 311,800 shares, gained 1/4 to 26 1/2. Caterpillar Tractor, in which 2 blocks totaling 295,800 shares were traded, was second most-active, off 1/2 to 49.

Prices generally were lower on the American Stock Exchange.

The Amex index dipped 11 cents to $27.43. Of 1,028 issues traded, 475 declined, and 348 advanced.

Volume was 4.84 million shares, compared with 4.25 million shares Thursday.

Stockton Grabs Halfway Lead In Minnesota

EDDINA, Minn. (AP) — Dave Stockton, one of the hungry young lions on the pro tour, bolted out of the pack with a four-under par 67 Friday and vaulted into the second-round lead in the $100,000 Minnesota Golf Classic.

Stockton, 27, who won just over $100,000 and two tournaments last year, had a 36-hole score of 135, seven-under on par on the 6,913-yard par 71 Braemar Golf Club Course.

Stockton held a one-stroke lead on youthful Hale Irwin and a pair of menacing veterans, Frank Beard and Dan Sikes, tied at 136.

Irwin and Beard each had a 67 and the hard-hitting Sikes had a 69 in the second round.

Hugh Ings, a South African who has been on the tour only five weeks, matched the course record with a sparkling 65 for 137. He was followed by Wayne Yates, R. H. Sikes and J. C. Goslie, all at 138.

First-round leaders John Lively and Mac McLendon ran into their difficulties in the hot, muggy weather and fell well back. Lively went from a 66 to a 77 for 143 while McLendon took a 74 for 140.

Homero Blancas, one shot off the pace going into the second round, shot a 73 for 140.

Cure Summer Doldrums By Listing Odd Daydreams

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Are you caught in the summer doldrums?
Many people are. They have come down with the hot weather blues. Life seems stale, routine and dull, too humdrum to be stood.
"Nothing seems worth doing," they say.
That's nonsense. There always are a number of things worth doing. If nothing else, you can write down a list of fairly odd daydreams and try to make a few of them come true.
For example, you might—
Take a correspondence course in sky writing.
Get a part-time job as a human fly.

HOPPER & HAMM
Headquarters for Sander Floor Covering,
Armstrong Floor Products

Count the contents of a can of peas.
Become the donor for the first human freckle transplant.
Listen for the crack of doom.
Sing a bawdy song at your next PTA meeting.
Beat City Hall.
Adopt a baby dolphin and keep it in your bathtub.
Champ at a bit.
Paste your own portrait among the photos of the "ten most wanted criminals" in your local post office and see how long it is before you're caught.
Take a ride through a sewer in a glass-bottomed boat.
Run away from home with your baby sitter's mother.
Learn Esperanto.
Go on a diet of hard tack.
Write a new old folk song.
Try to whistle Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata."
Memorize a poem by Allen Ginsberg backwards.
Peel a watermelon.

Write a long fan letter to the lonely old guy nobody remembers in midsummer—Santa Claus.
Try to teach an old dog at least one new trick.
Tattoo your wife.
Go down in the basement and see if you can make a batch of home brew as good as your grandpop made during prohibition.
Play like you've got $10 million, and then compose a long last will and testament in which you disinherit everybody.
Find a wonder drug that will cure all the ailments that other wonder drugs now cause.
As a last resort, you can get rid of your summer boredom—and surprise everybody in your office—by buckling down and doing an honest day's work.
That, of course, is an extreme measure and one not to be tried except with the advice and consent of your physician.

Betty Canary Shun the Recipes a la Gustatory

By BETTY CANARY
Along about this time of year women are frantically thumbing through recipe booklets in attempt to discover new, interesting, light and summery dishes for the dinner table. Usually, because her husband has said, "One more Tomato Delight and you're OUT." Sometimes because she started screaming hysterically over that last batch of deviled eggs. Whatever the reason, a few guidelines, some rules of thumb, are in order. (An interesting note here is that A Thumb is about the only thing never recommended as a perfect ingredient for aspic molds.)
Remember that recipe hints are everywhere. Leave no stone unturned in your search for new ideas. While I have never seen a recipe offer on a stone, I wouldn't be surprised to find many interesting recipes are one there. I did get a most unusual one I believe it com-many that one dares not read without having a pair of sharp scissors handy.

With a bit of experience one learns that many recipes are to be used only as File Box Filler, and are printed mainly for those women who feel insecure because they only have 78 Surefire Hamburger Hits instead of the more common 102.

One grows more selective as the summers go by and the tendency is to hastily turn the page when faced with a recipe calling for hamburger topped with millet seed and anchovies. Also there is less time to look for new recipes, especially those suggesting salads made with peach-half faces, no matter how artistically designed with parsley hair, black olive eyes and pimento-strip mouths.

To aid you in your search, the following tips: Avoid clipping recipes headed "Culinary Magic With..." as these invariably include hot dogs and/or cold cuts. It's also best to pass by those promising "The Gourmet's Way With..." because most of these also use hot dogs and there isn't a gourmet alive who believes in steaming a frankfurter in grape juice or could face up to one wrapped in mashed sweet potatoes.

"Gustatory Delights" usually means something covered with mint sauce and shaved chocolate.

"Sinfully Sweet" means with canned fruit cocktail.
"Shimmeringly Savory"—always aspic.

DUAL ROLE
HAVANA (AP) — Those working in the sugar cane harvest in Pinar del Rio Province are at least well shorn and shod.

A copy of the provincial newspaper "El Socialista" (4-11 edition) arriving in Havana late this month said that among the "volunteer" cane cutters were 12 barbers and eight cobblers who, "in their spare time," cut the hair and repaired the footwear of the others.

The paper noted that with such workers in the San Cristobal camp the others did not have to lose valuable time by leaving the camp to obtain these services.

Baked Ham Salad Bowl
Emma R. Law's Honey Oat Loaf
Fruit Compote Beverage

EMMA R. LAW'S HONEY OAT LOAF
1 1/2 cups warm water
1/4 cup honey
1 package active dry yeast
2 teaspoons salt
2 egg yolks

1-3rd cup salad, not olive oil
1 cup nonfat dry milk
1 solids cup quick-cooking
4 rolled oats
4 cups sifted flour

In a large bowl mix together the water and honey. Then sprinkle in the yeast and let stand 10 minutes. Add remaining ingredients except flour and then with a rubber spatula gradually work in flour until well blended—mixture will be very thick. Cover and let stand in a warm draft-free place for 30 minutes. With a spatula work dough well again then cover and let rise as previously until doubled—about 75 minutes.

Turn out on floured board and cut in half patting each half into loaf shape—dough will be very soft. Drop each half into an oiled loaf pan, 8 by 4 by 3 inches and turn to oil top. Let rise as previously until dough is about half-inch from top of pan.

Place in cold oven with shallow pan of water on rack underneath, setting over at 350 degrees and bake for 45 minutes. Turn out very gently on rack. Bread will be very soft, turning right side up to cool.

The better the quality of the play, the more likely the fireworks. This does not mean that experts always get the best results. Some times we have seen contracts batted around like a queen of diamonds and Ping-pong ball. West played his 10 of hearts at trick one after South had played low form dummy. South took his king and led the king of clubs. West won with the ace and played the nine of hearts.

What should expert South do? Expert West was capable of leading that nine-spot from ace-nine-eight. If that were his holding, the correct play would be the queen from dummy. Eventually, South did guess wrong. He played dummy's queen.

East was in with the ace and any ordinary player would have led back the three of hearts and settled for a one-trick set. Not this East! He wanted more. He led back the jack of spades. This play could not cost anything unless South held a five-card club suit and expert East had overlooked that possibility.

South was back in business. He could run out enough tricks for his contract but South was also somewhat of a hog. He wanted overtricks and it appeared to South that he could well afford a diamond finesse. If it lost, he would take the rest of the tricks and make four-odd. If it won, he would make all the tricks for five-odd.

The overtricks looked good to South. He promptly led his

Pullout Troops Reach Da Nang

SAIGON (AP) — A second contingent of the U.S. 9th Marine Regiment reached the northern port city of Da Nang Thursday hours after an advance Leatherneck element flew out of Vietnam to Okinawa.

The 9th Marines, which with support units total about 8,000 men, are being withdrawn from the war zone to Okinawa, under President Nixon's order pulling out 25,000 American troops.

The convoy of 55 vehicles, manned by some 70 jungle-fighting veterans, pulled into the U.S. Navy's deepwater pier at Da Nang to await the arrival of a military transport ship that will carry some equipment and 1,500 Marines from Vietnam.

The 1st Battalion of the 9th Marines is expected to leave Da Nang over the weekend, with the rest to follow in separate groups before the end of August.

The lowest in almost six months. Command spokesmen said the figure for the week ended last Saturday—a sharp drop from the 241 of the previous week—reflected the recent low level of the battlefront activity.

Only in the first two weeks of January were U.S. combat deaths lower, 101 in the week ended Jan. 4 and 151 the next. The average for 1969 has been 243 deaths a week.

Allied officers said the drop in casualties resulting from the lull also was reflected in sharp reductions in South Vietnamese and enemy battle deaths.

The casualty figures from the U.S. Command showed 1,584 Americans were wounded last week, compared with 1,674 the previous week.

The week's figures raised U.S. casualties to 37,019 killed and 238,147 wounded since Jan. 1, 1961. The number missing, captured or interned is 1,325.

The South Vietnamese command reported 247 government troops killed and 586 wounded last week, compared with 447 killed and 804 wounded the week before.

The two headquarters said the two headquarters said the deaths last week dropped to 153, 2,381 enemy soldiers were killed last week. The previous week the total given was 1,385.

LONGMONT, Colo. (AP) — The automobile leaped forward, jumped a curb and smashed into a building. But Patrolman Dick Moore didn't have the heart to give the driver a ticket. Milliners Branch Out On Wig Front

By AP Newsfeatures

It's no wonder that millinery designers have never seen eye-to-eye with hairstylists. Who could wear a hat on those bouffant sets? Hats were perfect cover-ups but on the days when madame's hair was fresh from the stylist, who wanted to cover it up and crush it?

Especially when it comes to beachwear and vacation time, cover-up is synonymous with hair fashion. Vacation time is precious—an active girl doesn't want to waste a moment. Now that she's able to top her crowning glory with a stylish wig, what modern miss debates whether to take the plunge into the ocean with the resultant droopy locks or to stay ashore, keep one's hairset, and stay hot. The wig-it gal gets into the swim, of course.

Perhaps that's why Adolfo and Halston, two prominent fashion designers who attained their initial acclaim in the design of fine millinery have branched out into the wig field. On their part, it's the furthest thing from a sell-out to the stylists—in fact it's another blow to the hairdressers.

"Jeanine" by Adolfo and "Heather" by Halston, mark the designers' debut in the wig field. The synthetic wigs, made of dnyel, are bobbed, curly and stretchable. The backs are tapered by hand, rather than machine, to add to their very natural appearance. Available in shades of blonde and dark brown, the wigs need not be reset after washing—curls remain permanent, claim the manufacturers.

According to Halston and Adolfo, the months to come will bring something new to the wig field—two wigs that will be able to be combed into many different styles. Then the girl fresh out of the pool won't have to settle for the wig style on hand. She can do her own styling—and who cares about those missed appointments with the hairstylist?

Governor Promises To Make Property Tax Exemption Law

Governor Richard Ogilvie told Morgan County Republicans Friday night that he will sign a bill that would exempt the first car and household goods from personal property tax assessments.

The legislation, Senate Bill 816, is currently in his desk awaiting signature.

The governor also told the capacity crowd at the county's Annual Republican Fund Raising dinner that he hopes delegates to the Constitutional Convention "will get rid of personal property taxes once and for all."

Saying that it will help meet campaign promises, Ogilvie spent the majority of his 20 minute speech defending the recently passed state income tax.

"None of us like to pay taxes," he said, "but if we want to make improvements to our state, we're going to have to pay for them. Ours is one of the wealthiest states in the nation and I'm sure we can afford them."

The state's chief executive indicated that contrary to rumors, he will not recommend further increases in taxes. State Senator G. William Horsley, who was present during the meeting, was one of the legislators voting against the tax for that reason.

"The income tax was not precisely the form I recommended," Ogilvie continued, "but

I'm Keeping My Word, Horsley Says

Republicans attending Friday night's Annual GOP Fund Raising dinner gave Senator G. William Horsley an applause of approval when he announced his return to Jacksonville "until I get a job done."

Without mentioning names, the Springfield senator was obviously referring to his recent attack on the administration and its procedures at the Jacksonville State Hospital.

"I'm keeping my word," the grinning senator said, "I have an appointment at 2:30 Wednesday afternoon with the head of a state department."

"I'll be spending one whole of a lot of time in Jacksonville in the next two or three weeks until I get a job done."

The appointment he spoke of is undoubtedly with John F. Briggs, acting director of the State Department of Mental Health, whom he has contacted regarding the state hospital issue.

Replying to a newsmen's question after the dinner, Horsley said he would not talk further about the statement until after the meeting Wednesday. Horsley initiated his criticism of the Jacksonville State Hospital leadership last month.

Ray Head, 76, of Rockport, died Thursday at the Pittsfield Nursing home.

He was a retired carpenter. He was born in Hannibal, Missouri March 25, 1893, the son of Thomas and Ella Head.

He was married to Hazel Grimsley in 1921 at Louisiana, Missouri. She preceded him in death.

Two daughters, Mrs. Elba Mae Kirby of Monmouth and Mrs. Ruth Stein of Olathe, Calif., survive. Four grandchildren and two great grandchildren also survive.

Services will be held 2 p.m. Sunday at the Ward Funeral Home in Pleasant Hill. The Rev. William Daley will officiate. Burial will be in Samuel Taylor Cemetery, at Rockport.

Friends may call at the Ward Funeral Home after 4 p.m. Saturday and until services Sunday.

Big Brothers, Sisters Host Trip To Ball Game

As part of its summer recreation program, the Morgan County Big Brother-Big Sister Organization recently sponsored a bus trip to St. Louis to see the St. Louis Cardinals play the New York Mets. To the grief of many Cardinal fans, the Cards lost 4-1, but the 60 children who attended enjoyed themselves immensely, nevertheless.

This is the first summer that the local organization has sponsored a comprehensive summer recreation program and thus far the results have been gratifying. A variety of activities are offered at the Lincoln and Jefferson school sites, as well as at Annie Barr Playground on East Walnut street.

Helping to fill the recreational void in areas of our community, the organization sees itself as making a valuable contribution to the youth of the community. Culminating the summer program will be a five-day residential camp for 75 youngsters at the 4-H camp on Lake Jacksonville.

Anyone interested in contributing to the program may contact either Frank Harris, executive director of the organization, or Harold Kund, director of the summer recreation program.

Paul Powell Charged In Suit Over Con-Con

CHICAGO (AP)—A U.S. District court judge Friday refused to dismiss a suit that charged Illinois Secretary of State Paul Powell used favoritism in determining the order candidates will be listed on ballots to elect delegates to a state constitutional convention.

Attorneys for Powell had asked that Judge Joseph Sam Perry dismiss the suit brought by Bernard Weisberg, a Chicago attorney and a con-con candidate from the 11th senatorial district.

Perry said he would begin hearings Monday on a request for a temporary restraining order which would block certification of the ballot.

Weisberg filed the suit in federal court in behalf of all potential delegates who said they were discriminated against by Powell's policy to process petitions received in Morley's mail first ahead of those who stood in line outside a Powell's office to present their petitions in person.

Monday was the first date for filing. Filing closed Friday.

The suit claims that petitions of candidates endorsed by regular party organizations were delivered to Powell's office before normal mail delivery times on Monday.

The suit claims Powell's policy is unconstitutional because he failed to give notice that petitions sent by mail would be given priority.

The suit notes that the position on the ballot is "a signal factor in determining the outcome of elections." The suit also asks that the order of placement on the ballots for the Sept. 23 primaries be selected by lot or by some other "fair method."

A similar suit was filed in Circuit Court in Springfield Wednesday by Mrs. Mary Lee Leahy, 29, of Chicago, a Loop attorney and a candidate from the 30th Senatorial district.

An official in Powell's office said a total of 525 petitions had been received by Friday 5 p.m. deadline.

At least six of the candidates were legislators. Thursday night the Illinois Supreme Court ruled legislators may be delegates.

State Association Promotes 'Write The Governor' Plan

Cal Skinner, Jr., of Woodstock (McHenry County), president of the County Treasurers' Association, is currently on a statewide campaign urging citizens to "Write the Governor" concerning passage of Senate Bill 816.

Skinner's contention is that citizens have the best chance yet to get rid of the hated personal property tax. Senate Bill 816 is currently lying on the governor's desk, awaiting his signature.

The treasurers' association has long favored the elimination of the personal property tax on individuals because of the impossibility of assessing it equitably and collecting it uniformly.

In most counties, the treasurer's office is in charge of collecting taxes. Morgan county operates under the commission form of government and delegates that authority to the sheriff of the county, one of only 17 such counties out of the state's 102.

Senate Bill 816 would exempt the first car and household goods from assessment for personal property tax. There is little question that should a taxpayer own two cars, the exemption would, naturally, be the lowest or most expensive one.

The bill would allow the assessor's office to treat people the same way most people in Chicago are treated," Skinner said. "In short, most would escape any assessment."

Skinner said that anyone who wants to help get the bill signed into law should write Governor Richard B. Ogilvie in Springfield as soon as possible.

While the possibility exists that the bill may be unconstitutional, the proposed exemptions from the tax can't be any more unconstitutional than the complete lack of uniformity of assessment and collection procedures throughout Illinois.

"If no one challenges the bill's constitutionality, it will stand," Skinner believes.

Pittsfield Head Start Children Attend Fair

PITTSFIELD — Approximately 200 Head Start children, teachers, aides, cooks and volunteer helpers were guests of the Griggsville Fair last week.

The children, many of whom had never been to a Fair, were thrilled at the day's outing which included a guided tour of the Fair by Mr. Penstone and a free dinner. The children were treated to free rides and refreshments by Mr. Skinner on behalf of the Fair board.

During the afternoon the children watched the Kovaz Daredevils thrill drivers and left for home a tired but happy lot of girls and boys.

Those in charge of Head Start want to express their appreciation for the hospitality shown those pre-school boys and girls. Especially do we thank Mr. Bob Skinner of Griggsville and Mr. Penstone, Bueters, Pepsi, Bergmans, and the men who handle the rides for their kindness. The teachers and volunteer helpers enjoyed taking the children and were rewarded many times during the day by expressions from grateful children.

John Codd, Head Start director, says that the Head Start Program in Pike County has some children who will need clothing to start school this fall. These children are 4, 5, and 6 years of age, just at the age when children outgrow their clothing. No doubt many families have clothing that their children have outgrown and for which they no longer have any use.

If you have clothing that might fit boys or girls of this age and will bring it to one of the Pike County Head Start centers, the Head Start social workers will see that it goes to a boy or girl who will wear it to school this fall. Head Start office telephone is 265-4257.
